Creaseys extends its international reach

Creaseys, the Tunbridge Wells-based, award-winning chartered accountancy firm, has expanded its international links even further. IGAF – the global association of independent accountancy firms, which Creaseys has been a member of for a number of years - has merged with Polaris International and Fidunion International to form IGAF Polaris.

Creaseys boasts specialists dealing with international tax and accounting work and assists both businesses and individuals to structure their affairs and manage their taxation liabilities.

“We are seeing a substantial growth in our tax practice and, in particular, expatriate work and businesses expanding overseas,” says Richard Holme, International Tax Partner at Creaseys. “The increased size of our international grouping means that we can improve the very good service that we are already able to offer still further.”

The IGAF Polaris network now comprises 843 offices in 89 countries. This substantial increase in size for the merged organisation will enable IGAF Polaris member firms, such as Creaseys, to provide the necessary resources to meet growing international client demands.

The merger will also increase member firms' ability to benchmark and share ideas to improve operations and client service.

Richard concluded "This is an exciting time for all of us because of the opportunities the merger brings."
