Creaseys appoints leading Trust Manager

Stephanie Parker has joined Creaseys, the award-winning Tunbridge Wells-based accountancy firm, in the newly-created role of Trust Manager within the firm's Private Client department. In her new role, she will be working closely with Creaseys' clients to help them with the planning and administration of trusts for people based both in the UK and overseas. She will identify opportunities to help clients in a variety of ways, through estate planning, succession planning and tax mitigation.

Stephanie brings with her wide experience in working in this area and joins the firm from UHY Hacker Young Chartered Accountants in London. She has also worked at firms including Reeves + Neylan in Canterbury and Chavereys in Faversham.

"I am delighted to have joined Creaseys and like the fact that I am dealing with some really good quality work but locally in Kent," says Stephanie. "I have already met a number of the firm's clients and am looking forward to also building new business for our trust department. My goal is to make Creaseys the adviser of choice in the south east when it comes to trusts."

Trusts can be of great benefit, not only in minimising tax liabilities, but also protecting the family's wealth for the benefit of future generations.

“Over the years, our Private Client department has built a strong reputation for its work in setting up and administering trusts, as well as reviewing existing trust arrangements,” says Emma Roberts, chief executive of Creaseys. “We are delighted that Stephanie has joined us as Trust Manager. She has wide experience in the area of trusts and will help us to further develop our coverage in that area.”
